Cancer carers

A BIG group gathered at the New Horizons Therapy Unit last week to celebrate the opening of SolarisCare in Albany.

The organisation runs a number of cancer support centres across the State and is now combining with New Horizons to create SolarisCare Great Southern.

Volunteers, board members, and donors celebrated a bright future, and past achievements.

Free support

ALBANY cancer patients can now access free support services to help them cope with the physical and emotional side effects of cancer diagnosis and treatment.

SolarisCare's Cancer Support Centre Great Southern merged with New Horizons Complementary Therapy unit and opened adjacent to Albany Hospital in October to provide cancer patients with complementary therapies.

SolarisCare chief executive David Edwards travelled to Albany to visit the new centre yesterday.

"SolarisCare Cancer Support Centres are a 'soft place to land' for people with cancer, assisting them to achieve optimal wellbeing and quality of life while undergoing cancer treatments," Mr Edwards said.
